PLAGUE KILLS TWO COWS

Secondary Attacked Causes Deaths of Cows Claims Mrs. Durand

BLAMES STATE INSPECTORS

Two of the cattle on the Durand farm at Lake Bluff died Friday from what is termed by Mrs. Durand as a secondary attack of the hoof and mouth disease.

Sometime ago Master in Chancery Heydecker was appealed to and an injunction restraining the government officials from slaughtering the cattle was issued. At that time the federal and state authorities declared that the delay would handicap their fight against the inroads of the germ in this county and arguments for the dissolution of the injunction were made before Judge Donnelly at Woodstock. At that time the court dissolved the injunction but ordered that it stand until acted upon by the supreme court. It was announced by Deputy State Veterinarian A. A. Stoekinger, that a stricter quarantine would be kept on the Crab Tree farm as a result of the new developments in the case.

Mrs. Durand waxed hot against the United States inspectors:

"If you write anything at all out it," Mrs. Durand said over the phone from Crabtree farm at Lake Bluff, "please say it was due to the criminal carelessness of the state authorities, who wouldn't permit a veterinarian to come out to my place for two or three weeks. Dr. Jos. Hughes has been looking after my herd since Saturday, and they would all have died."

She admitted three or four of her cows have contracted infection and are in a sorry state.

Federal officials say the death of the question is a striking illustration of the wisdom of the policy of slaughter of an infected herd. "It is true," said Dr. Houck, "for the federal bureau of inquiry," that the foot and mouth disease will run its course in two weeks and estimates of two weeks and to 10 per cent are from 2 to 10 per cent.

"If that was the whole story we wouldn't worry. But the foot and mouth disease in its wake many serious complications. Septicemia blood poisoning, infection or whatever you call it is one of the commonest causes of bacteria infection in and foreign."

"When you consider the fact of the disease, the value of the animals, the loss of $20, not to mention the possibility of its contracting to other animals and the loss of the entire herd, the quarantine is really an economic question. The experts are agreed that this is the only method of exterminating the disease."

Dr. Houck refers to the recent article on the subject written by Dr. Mohler assistant chief bureau of animal industry. "Foot and mouth disease being the most contagious disease of animals," he says, "its control by quarantine measures and disinfection has been impossible in every country where it has been undertaken."

"In the previous outbreak of 1902 and 1903 which occurred in the United States the expenditure of the United States government amounted to about $300,000 in each year. Between the three outbreaks, and the present one, there were several intervals, and by distributing the expenditure over the intervening periods the total amount per year would be $50,000, which is very small when compared with the losses which would result if the disease had been allowed to spread."

Dr. Houck says that the Loeffler method of Germany has discovered a serum which immunizes an animal about sixty days. The shortness of period of immunity and the cost of serum—about $8 for each animal—makes this method impracticable, according to Dr. Houck. The germ of the disease has been isolated.

$20,000 HERD OWNED BY MEEKER IS SLAUGHTER

Arthur Meeker, the packer, has ordered the slaughter of his herd of 170 dairy cows, valued at approximately $20,000. Lesions of foot and mouth disease were discovered on thirteen of the animals Monday by Dr. Stoekinger, deputy state veterinarian.

Thirty-five hundred bottles of certified milk daily have been supplied from the Arcady farms, owned by Mr. Meeker, to customers in Chicago and in the north shore suburbs. When the first animal in the herd at the Meeker estate at Lake Forest became ill Saturday night, the shipment of milk from that farm was immediately discontinued.

No sign of infection has developed at the three other Meeker farms on the north shore, according to the authorities.

Veterinarians and health department officials say there is no occasion for alarm on the part of customers who have been receiving milk from the Arcady farms. The herds have been closely watched and the disease was discovered, it is declared, before it could possibly be transmitted to the milk. Mr. Meeker has made arrangements to supply his customers from the estate of Edward Tilden, Delevan, Wis.

He gave out this statement: "With the permission of the milk commission, the Arcady farms have contracted for the milk of one of the largest and best dairies in Wisconsin, situated at Delavan. They are installing a new bottling plant there, and commencing on Sunday, Oct. 3, Arcady farms' certified milk will be shipped direct to Chicago from that point using new appliances and new bottle, seals and caps."

"In meeting this situation I do not intend to follow the short sighted policy of Mrs. Scott Durand, which in my opinion, is spreading infection throughout the state. Mr. Meeker said: 'I have a valuable herd and I know nearly every one of the animals by name. I wouldn't undertake to say how much they are worth. But they will be slaughtered. This is the only method of wiping out the disease. Mrs. Scott Durand's injunction against interference with her herd is costing shippers hundreds of thousands of dollars.'"

HENRY WEDGE FILES PETITION AGAINST ALDER

Henry Wedge of Waukegan, who was swindled out of $3,000 by John Kline, alias John Beck, alias John W. W. Barnhart, alias George Adler by means of a lost deed upon the Grimm farm, to which the clever swindler held a forged deed, has filed a petition asking that the noted swindler who is serving a sentence in the Wisconsin state prison at Waupun, be adjudged bankrupt. The petition was filed in the United States court on Monday. Adler was sentenced to five years imprisonment for alleged forgery after his sensational escape from Waukegan jail.

Wedge is not alone in the proceeding as there are five others also interested in the matter.

The bankruptcy action was started in the eastern Wisconsin district Monday for service on Adler.

Adler is estimated to have cleaned up between $500,000 and $1,000,000 as the results of the many swindlers he is alleged to have perpetrated. Just how much of this he saved is not known, but Mr. Wedge and the other creditors wish to recover part of their money through bankruptcy proceedings if it is possible.

Busse's Window Wins Point

Mrs. Fred A. Busse, widow of late Chicago mayor, smiled cheerily Tuesday in Chicago over a order issued by Judge Horner in the probate court allowing her to use "as much as is necessary" of the funds of her husband's estate in her legal fight against George A. Busse and others to retain it. "It's a great help," she said. "I'm glad one thing has been decided in my favor, anyway."

Life in its Various Forms.

The sea teems with plant and animal life, and it has been estimated that the amount of life in the sea exceeds that of the land, square mile for square mile. Animal life is found nearly everywhere, even at the greatest depths; but it flourishes most at or near the shore. On the other hand, plant life seems to be absent over the bottoms of the ocean basins, but plentiful at the surface, where the sunlight plays an important part in its growth.

SELLS THE LUNG MOTOR

Company Promoted by Frank T. Fowler to Be Taken Over by New York Men

TO BE MILLION DOLLAR CO.

The Lungmotor company, a concern launched by Frank T. Fowler and invested in heavily by Waukegan men, who backed the corporation known as the Life Saving Devices company, was ordered sold by a unanimous vote of the stockholders at a meeting at the Chicago office 180 N. Market street, Chicago, Monday afternoon.

The prospective purchasers, who to date have put up about $3,000 for options on stocks, etc., are New York men. They plan as soon as they fulfill their part of the deal, to incorporate a new company with $1,000,000 capital. They are to put a big force of salesmen on the road at once and it is expected that at least $12,000 will be spent in the immediate future in advertising the famous lungmotor.

Mr. Fowler is to remain with the new company under a fine salary, as is also Louis D. Jones, formerly of Waukegan secretary of the Life Saving Devices company.

In fact, the new company, it is said, will retain the entire Chicago office and factory force intact.

The output of the factory is to be increased materially and it is expected that with the new capital which goes into the business the lungmotor's prominence as a respirator will be even much greater in the future than in the past. It now is by all odds the pre-eminent device of the kind on the market.

Among the Waukegan men who own stock in the company and who Monday voted to sell the business to the New Yorkers are: D. E. Clarke, Charles Len, Joseph Stein, Louis Clarke, L. Jones, Arnold Nolan, Frank Nolan, L. Fred Bischoff, Dr. Fred Gourley, M. D. E. Clarke and daughters, Wm. Meadard and W. J. Smith.

They are to get out all they put into the company together with interest on the investment.

It is a known fact that when the deal is through, Mr. Fowler will have closed up something more than $50,000 cash besides having an interest in a new company as well as having a good position with it. So it is seen that the former Waukegan man has not made good on the venture in which for two years he had wrapped up his efforts and displayed the greatest possible confidence in its ultimate success.

new Value of His Work.

Impressably the best epitaph for Sir James Murray, greatest of dictionary makers, might be taken from one of his conversations between Johnson and Haydon. In old age Boswell said to him, apropos of the dictionary, "You don't know what you were undertaking." "Yes, sir," was the answer, "I knew very well what I was undertaking, and very well how to do it, and I did it very well."

FARMERS TRYING TO STOP HUNTERS FROM TRESPASSING

It is reported that hunters are more numerous this fall than they ever have been before. The farmers in this locality are trying to invent some means of keeping them off their land.

The situation is more serious in the neighborhood of Spring Grove because of the fact that hunting has been strictly forbidden in Lake county owing to the prevalence of the foot and mouth disease, and the hunters flock over from that county in swarms and are causing land owners in the vicinity of Spring Grove and Grass Lake no little anxiety.

A prominent Spring Grove farmer stated to a Gazette reporter Wednesday that some practical action would have to be taken to protect the stock and property, but it was a difficult proposition for the individual farmers to keep these penches from their premises because of the red tape it necessary to go through before an offender could be punished. He said that in his opinion the only remedy lay in organization and if the farmers would organize as they have in some localities, then progress could be made toward curbing the nuisance.

One of the farmers who owns a large dairy in that section has written to Governor Deneen concerning the matter and when it is found out what can be done some action will likely be taken by Spring Grove farmers to curb the hunters that are infesting their premises—Richmond Gazette.

Antioch Concrete Works

A visit to the Antioch concrete works reveals the fact the company is doing a remarkably good business since their removal from Grass Lake to this village. In fact they are in the present time considerably behind in their orders. Their plant is an up-to-date one. Any one who is interested in seeing cement block, concrete brick and cement tile manufactured is cordially invited to visit their plant near the Soo Line depot.

Girls Will Marry Crippled Soldiers.

A letter in the London Daily Mail conveys the information that hundreds of English girls have expressed their willingness to marry, crippled British soldiers and to care for them as their contribution to their country's cause. The offer came as the result of a published suggestion that plucky girls might be of service so, and all that stands in the way of the success of this wholesale matchmaking is that no degree of pluck and patriotism seems sufficient to overcome maldoneliness. The girls have agreed to marry, but they cannot walk up to the first one-legged soldier they see, and tell him so. Meetings are to be arranged by certain women of the London West end, where these self-sacrificing girls will be introduced to the lifelong burdens they have agreed to take as husbands.

Of Course Not.

"That doctor claims to have discovered an entirely new disease."

"I hope he won't publish the symptoms of it."

"Why not?"

"People cannot have it if they do not know the symptoms, can they?"

From the Latin.

The Russians, who were slightly influenced by the Latin races, say that "dogs bark and the wind carries it away," but the French, Spaniards, Germans and English, who have inherited more than they wish to acknowledge from ancient Rome, all agree that "barking dogs don't bite," and we have also in English the warning to "have a care for a silent dog and still water," which is clearly a free translation of the Latin original.

COMPARING POLICE WITH FIREMEN

The Firemen Do the Most For a Town and Get the Least of Praise

COMPARE FOR YOURSELF

The following article taken from a late edition of the Illinois Firemen's Association is written by Geo. A. De-trick and is in the nature of a comparison between a police department and a fire department. By request we are herewith reprinting the article:

My work today is to compare these two departments, put them in the spotlight or candlelight, and then weigh them in the balances. Of course some of the men are short—some are tall—some are stout—some are lean like myself for instance. Some too are plain faced and baldheaded. I would not have a bald head for anything. Some are quite good looking, with an abundant growth of hair—like—yours truly—for instance.

Is there any difference in the work and the hours they put in, and the pay they receive? I say yes. The Fireman are on duty 24 hours a day, some have 12 hours off a week, some get 24 hours off a week. There are a few cities which have two platoons, which I do not approve of.

The Police work eight, ten and twelve hours a day.

Take the small towns they have a volunteer fire department, and a paid Police department. Why not a volunteer Police department. There is no difference as I can see, why a lot of boys should get together and for a volunteer fire department, pay does out of their own pockets; then when they want a hose cart and money to furnish their rooms, they have to get up a dance or run a bazaar to get the money. Then when there is a fire—and there usually is, they go to it, just as they are, dress suit, patent leathers and all, get the whole outfit ruined, pay 20 to 40 for a new suit, and what thanks do they get, none at all; only some crank funds fault because they threw too much water. They are criticized by all and praised by none.

Often times our firemen get hurt, get wet and cold on a freezing winter day or night and never get over it, he loses his time at the shop or store, pays his own doctors bills, pays his own funeral expenses when he dies; and the party whose property he saved and probably the lives of his dear ones, never say "much obliged," probably never asks his wife how he is getting along; and it he dies, probably not even sends a bunch of flowers to the funeral. In some states the firemen have gotten laws passed to get two percent of the foreign insurance written in their town for the fire department, to buy apparatus or give pension funds and to help firemen that get hurt; some get it and some do not. The city collects it, puts it in the city treasury, from which they pay the police, fix the streets, or anything they see fit to do with it. Still the firemen keep up their department at their own expense. Out of 81 towns of Illinois that answered the blanks I sent out, there are twelve towns that do not give a cent to the fire department. They have 261 firemen and they do not pay a cent for their work, and not even buy the apparatus for them; and some of these towns take the two per cent, the boys got the laws passed for their own use, and even pay their dues in the association to get a few dollars to help them run the department, and the city dads will not let them have that; they put it in the city treasury and use it for other purposes. These 12 towns have 18 policemen which they pay $11,020.

Do the police build their lock-up? No. They do not even buy the star they wear.

Do they get up entertainments to help pay the running expenses of their department? No. If they get up anything to raise money they take it for their pension fund.

When there is a fire in the small town, some one rings the fire bell or blows the whistle; then the fire boys get the hose cart and hook and ladder truck to the fire the best way they can.

McGUFFIN NAMED BY EDWARDS FOR OFFICE OF MASTER IN CHANCERY

Tuesday morning Judge Claire C. Edwards appointed Attorney Paul MacGuffin of Libertyville to the office of Master in Chancery.

The position has been held for the past five years by Attorney Edward J. Heydecker, who has made an excellent official and retires after a term of service which has proved satisfactory to all those with whom it has been his privilege to transact legal business.

The new master in chancery is an attorney of prominence in the county, and has for almost twenty years been located at Libertyville, where he began his career as an attorney. He has in that time built up an enviable practice and has been a conspicuous figure in all matters of interest or important in the village. He has held the office of mayor of his home town and other offices of minor importance. He was for several years connected with the Lake county agricultural association as president, and during his regime the organization was successfully managed.

Master in Chancery MacGuffin will undoubtedly open an office in Waukegan as all the legal business coming before that officer, naturally originates at the county seat and the master should be in close touch with the court.

Turkey's Prime.

The Turkish empire reached its greatest glory in the reign of Solyman the Magnificent, who held the throne from 1520 until 1566. Besides his North African possessions his territories extended from near what is now the border of Germany to Persia. There was at that time no other state that approached the Turkish in size or wealth.

To Keep Well.

A knowledge of the law of immunity teaches that when our health is at its best our restraining power is at its best. Hence we say we are immune to disease. While it is wise and necessary to avoid, control and destroy disease producing germs wherever found, it is very necessary to render the body as nearly immune as possible and then keep it in that condition.

The Farm of Today (By James J. Montague)

On Arthur Meeker's farm at Lake Forest the cows are given a daily footbath and a rotary brush is used to scrub their teeth.

We bathed the bossies' tootsies, we've cleaned the rooster's ears, We've trimmed the turkey's wattles with antiseptic shears.

With talcum all the guinea hens are beautiful and bright, And Dobbin's wreath of gleaming teeth we've brushed snowy white.

With pungent sachet powder we've glorified the dog, And when we have the leisure we'll manicure the hog!

We've done all in our power to have a barn de luxe, We've dipped the sheep in eau de rose, we've sterilized the ducks, The little chicks are daily feed on sanitized worm.

The calves and colts are always boiled to keep them free from germs, And thoroughly to carry a prophylactic plan.

Next week we think we'll gin to wash the hired men.

IN STERLING LIVES A GIRL

Who Suffered As Many Girls Do—Tells How She Found Relief.

Sterling, Conn.—"I am a girl of 22 years and I used to faint away every month and was very weak. I was also bothered a lot with female weakness. I read your little book 'Wisdom for Women,' and I saw how others had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and decided to try it, and it has made me feel like a new girl and I am now relieved of all these troubles. I hope all young girls will get relief as I have. I never felt better in my life."—Mrs. JOHN TETREAU, Box 116, Sterling, Conn.

Massena, N. Y.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I highly recommend it. If anyone wants to write to me I will gladly tell her about my case. I was certainly in a bad condition as my blood was all turning to water. I had pimples on my face and a bad color, and for five years I had been troubled with suppression. The doctors called it 'Anemia and Exhaustion,' and said I was all run down, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me out all right."—Miss LAVISA MYERS, Box 74, Massena, N. Y.

Postine

A Soluble Antiseptic Powder to be dissolved in water as needed For Douches

In the local treatment of women's ill-effects as leucorrhea and inflammation, douches of Postine are very efficacious. No woman who has ever used medicated douches will fail to appreciate the clean and healthy condition Postine produces and the prompt relief from soreness and discomfort which follows its use. This is because Postine possesses superior cleansing, disinfecting and healing properties.

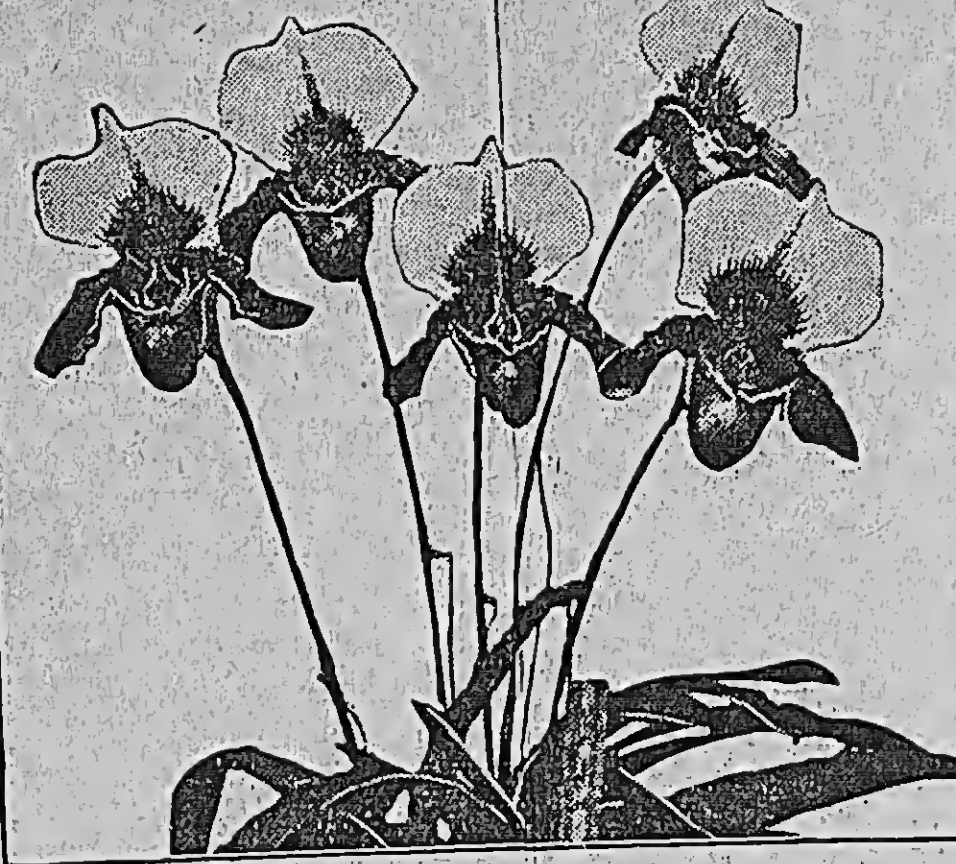

For ten years the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. has recommended Postine in their private correspondence with women, which proves its superiority. Women who have been relieved say it is "worth its weight in gold." At drug stores, 25c. large box or by mail. Sample free. The Postine Toilet Co., Boston, Mass.

The HOME BEAUTIFUL

Flowers and Shrubbery—Their Care and Cultivation

Cypripedium Leeanum.

ORCHIDS IN THE HOUSE

By FRANK H. SWEET.

During my leisure hours in the greenhouse I find no plants so interesting as the orchids. Each succeeding season is making this exquisite, fantastic plant more popular with commercial florists and private collectors who have greenhouses of their own.

The increasing demand for the cut flowers and the fact that, in spite of popular belief, orchids are easily grown and very little trouble, are sufficient inducements for many enterprising growers to include them among their plants.

But as yet the ordinary house grower has been unable to overcome her fear of these beautiful, curious productions of nature. To her they are something extremely delicate and fragile—something that an ordinary whiff of air will shiver and destroy. She looks at them longingly on her rare visits to the neighboring greenhouse, but shakes her head when approached on the subject of purchasing.

They are too tender, she declares, with conclusive regret in her voice. They would be out of place among her window collection of sturdy carnations and begonias and callas and geraniums, and rarely do the persistent arguments of the horticultural writer, who is now and then one who yields to the fascination of an exquisite dandelion or onion glesum, and bears the treasure home with the shrinking conviction that it will live under her care but a few days.

Still even for these few days of possession she is willing to pay the purchase money, and she places the orchid among her plants and glows over it with the joy of an ignorant connoisseur—if the term may be used.

And it goes without saying that having once begun she will not cease until she discontinues growing plants.

But the days and the weeks and the months go by, and the beautiful fantastic foreigner shows no disposition to die, or even to languish.

Long spikes of beautiful flowers, wonderful flowers, creep down among the geranium leaves, and other spikes rest caressingly against the rich green of the callas. Indeed so long as it is plentifully supplied with water the little stranger is apparently well satisfied with the surroundings.

It fills the room with fragrance, and its curious, white, finger and tooth roots cling tightly to the small board home that hangs suspended above the other plants.

But not all orchids are so comfortable. Many will not thrive outside of greenhouses, and many others would best be left alone, even by florists.

However, among the hundreds of varieties, there are plenty that will accommodate themselves to their surroundings. I have had orchids that were far less trouble than ordinary bedding plants, and whose flowers were exquisitely beautiful and fragrant.

The great secret of their cultivation is the resting. Many species that are considered hard to grow and flower, suffer much from too kind treatment when they should be left entirely alone in a cool temperature.

In winter a daily syringing of growing plants is sufficient, and during the hot months fresh water evaporated several times a day makes a much better moisture than that of stagnant water.

As a rule, orchids do better when suspended, and apple wood with very little or no moss at all is preferred by the majority of growers. Often string roots, some of them one and a half feet long, hang in bunches far below the blocks, and these roots keep in healthy condition, while potted plants show more or less decayed roots in the pots or on the surface of the dressing.

About the beginning of the year many orchids will show flower buds all up the stems of last season's growth and can then be kept in a temperature of 65 to 75 degrees, when in from 20 to 25 days they will be in a blast of flowers.

They should be kept growing slowly toward spring, and then plentifully supplied with heat and moisture till growths are finished and bulbs firm. After that water should be gradually withheld till they are stored away to their needed rest.

When growing, the plants should be kept over every day to see that they have proper drainage, and the sphagnum that has become decayed should be removed and fresh used in replacing.

At this season they should be carefully picked out and given a little meagering, warmth and light, care being taken that they are not fully exposed to the sun's rays.

So little attention are the merits of much success in the cultivation of the lovely odontogloss and callas and cypripediums.

I finally do not overstep; do not let them get water-logged, or very dried keep them in a cool place, out drafts. These rules followed, the plant will repay the care given it.

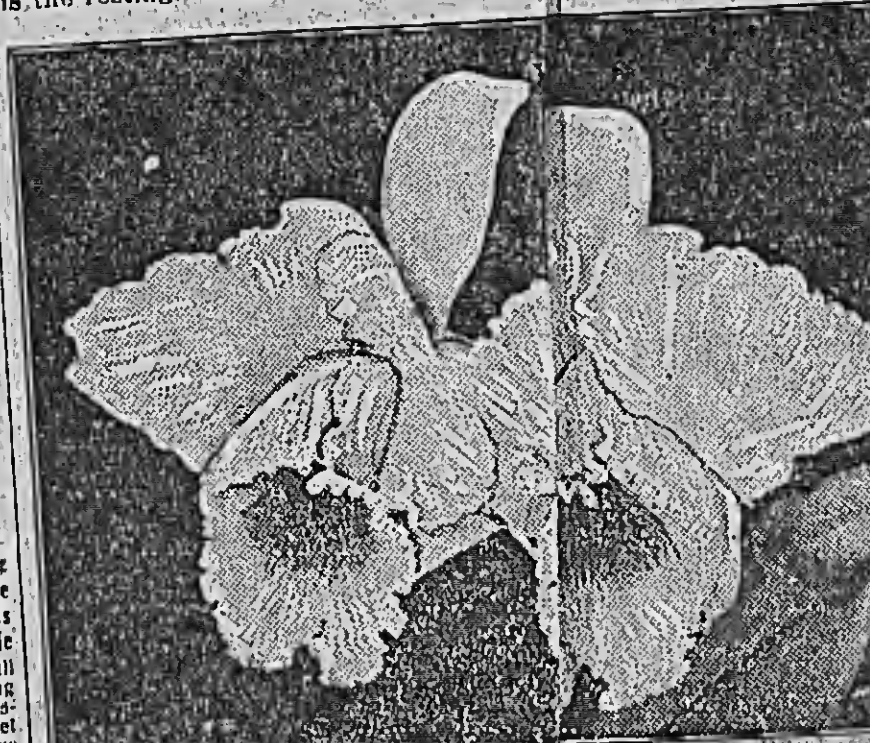

HOME FLOWER HINTS

Impatiens is a tender greenhouse shrub and if started out-of-doors in spring, must be potted before the flowers are beautiful—first in a cream, turning to a pure white. The shrub is trumpet-shaped, and the shrub is sometimes called "Angel's Trick."

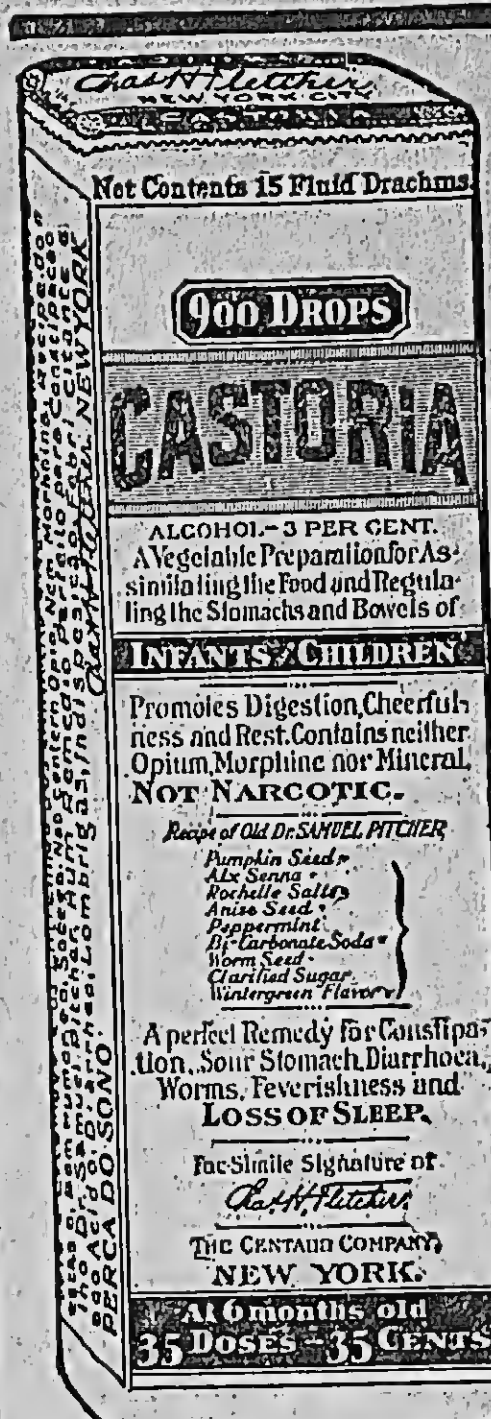

Adiantum is a summer bloomer, should be allowed to rest during winter. It has wonderful vitality and will keep well in almost any plant not frozen. In central and southern states it is hardy out of doors.

Roses often fail to bloom for years after being disturbed. The best setting is when dormant in the soil. Glory of Moss and Henry Martine are among the best.

Senecio de Bon is a most satisfactory plant after it gets too large for window. It is an easy, quick grower with most beautiful leaves, and it did not bloom—which it

"Yes, sir," was the respectful answer of the applicant.

"Können Sie Deutsch sprechen?" asked the trustee sharply.

"Jawohl!" came the answer of the applicant, not to be taken off his guard thus easily.

"Parlez-vous français?" demanded the interrogator, giving the applicant no time to recover.

"Oui," said the applicant. The president beamed with pleasure upon his new member of the board.

"Seems," he said, addressing no one in particular, "that the gentleman is eminently qualified for the post."

"But," turning again to the applicant, "there is one more question that I must ask you. What is the simian equivalent of fear as expressed in the monkey language as translated by Professor Garner?"

Realizing that he had failed in the supreme test, the applicant turned sadly away.

A DOCTOR'S EXPERIENCE

Medicine Not Needed in This Case.

It is hard to convince some people that coffee does them an injury. They lay their bad feelings to almost every cause but the true and unsuspected one.

But the doctor knows. His wide experience has proven to him that, to some systems, coffee is an insidious poison that undermines the health. Ask him if coffee is a cause of constipation, stomach and nervous troubles.

"I have been a coffee drinker all my life, and when taken sick two years ago with nervous prostration, the doctor said that my nervous system was broken down and that I would have to give up coffee."

"I got so weak and shaky I could not work, and reading an advertisement of Postum I asked my grocer if he had any of it. He said, 'Yes,' and that he used it in his family and it was all it claimed to be."

"So I quit coffee and commenced to use Postum steadily, and in about two weeks I could sleep better and get up in the morning, feeling fresh. In about two months I began to gain flesh. I weighed only 146 pounds when I commenced on Postum and now I weigh 167 and feel better than I did at 20 years of age."

"I am working every day and sleep well at night. My two children were coffee drinkers, but they have not drunk any since Postum came into the house, and are far more healthy than they were before." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum comes in two forms: Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 1lb and 25c packages. Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 20c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup. "There's a Reason" for Postum. —sold by Grocers.

A DOCTOR'S EXPERIENCE. Medicine Not Needed in This Case. It is hard to convince some people that coffee does them an injury. They lay their bad feelings to almost every cause but the true and unsuspected one.

But the doctor knows. His wide experience has proven to him that, to some systems, coffee is an insidious poison that undermines the health. Ask him if coffee is a cause of constipation, stomach and nervous troubles.

"I have been a coffee drinker all my life, and when taken sick two years ago with nervous prostration, the doctor said that my nervous system was broken down and that I would have to give up coffee."

"I got so weak and shaky I could not work, and reading an advertisement of Postum I asked my grocer if he had any of it. He said, 'Yes,' and that he used it in his family and it was all it claimed to be."

"So I quit coffee and commenced to use Postum steadily, and in about two weeks I could sleep better and get up in the morning, feeling fresh. In about two months I began to gain flesh. I weighed only 146 pounds when I commenced on Postum and now I weigh 167 and feel better than I did at 20 years of age."

"I am working every day and sleep well at night. My two children were coffee drinkers, but they have not drunk any since Postum came into the house, and are far more healthy than they were before." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum comes in two forms: Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 1lb and 25c packages. Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 20c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup. "There's a Reason" for Postum. —sold by Grocers.

PERFECTION

Awarded Medal of Honor and Gold Medal. At Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Warm and Happy

The NEW PERFECTION Heater is an agreeable source of comfort to grown people—but it is a positive necessity when there are children in the house. You can't let the baby shiver and take cold.

With the NEW PERFECTION to take off the chill mornings and evenings, and to dry out dampness, you can delay starting winter fires until real cold weather begins.

With everyone warm and happy, free from colds developed from lowered vitality, there is no need of a faro.

The NEW PERFECTION is the greatest comfort you can install in your home, an aid to good health, a means to economy, the cleanest heat you can use.

Easy to care for, ready by striking a match, burns 10 hours on one gallon of oil; can't smoke. No trouble to re-wick because wick and carrier are combined—the fresh wick all ready to put in, clean, smooth and ready to light. For best results use Perfection Oil.

At the Panama-Pacific Exposition the many points of superiority of the NEW PERFECTION line won a medal of honor, while a Gold Medal was awarded the NEW PERFECTION Heater—a sweeping victory.

Your dealer has the NEW PERFECTION Oil Heater on exhibition. Look for the triangle for warmth, comfort and good cheer. He will be glad to show you the different models.

COMPARING POLICE WITH FIREMEN

and do the best to fight the fire with the apparatus they have to work with. In a good many cities that buy the apparatus they begrudge what they get the boys. When there is a holdup or a store broken into, or anything going wrong, and a policeman is wanted, the party that knows about it, gets word to the police the best way he can—but eh, where can you find a policeman. No one can tell, I know of times when it has been a half hour or even longer before he is found. By that time the thief has gone—no one knows where. Why not have a volunteer police department? Then when the call comes you have plenty of men to do the work, and they will not know who is after him. The way it is now a policeman has a uniform and a star on his coat polished like an electric headlight and as large as a water pail, so that law-breaker can see him and keep out of his way, and get in a dark alley, while the police is under the gas or electric lights.

The police department get nearly everything they ask for, and the tax payer and city never whimper.

You let the firemen ask for a new apparatus and there is a howl on expenses. They are only asking for it to help save your property and the lives of your dear ones.

The 81 cities of Illinois that answered the blanks I sent them, paid $332,358 to 1967 men, to fight their fires last year or $169.50 per man. The same 81 cities paid $370,183 to 364 policemen to patrol the streets, or $1,017 per man. There were 22 firemen hurt. There was one policeman killed and 21 hurt in the line of duty. There were 8 towns that did not give me their expenses of running the police department; they said they did not know, or referred me to the city clerk, or some other remarks.

That would make the police department still higher.

The fireman gets less pay for what he does for his city than the policeman, and puts in more hours. You will always find the fireman at his post, ready to fight his dreaded enemy, FIRE.

Can you show me a fireman, who has made 50 to 100,000 dollars on the fire department.

Take what we hear of the two departments, and what we know to be true, and draw your own conclusion of the two departments.

Came Handy in His Line.

"There is nothing like sleep," remarked a chance acquaintance to the newspaper man as he sized up the belated sleepers in a New York subway car in the wee hours of the morning. "All my life I have done what ever has been in my power to help the cause of sleep in the human race. Whenever I have heard that a doctor is counseling his patients to sleep longer, I have made a point of writing him a letter of congratulation. And I do not mind saying that I myself have done a bit to persuade people that sleep is the greatest blessing to mankind." "The perfect sleeper," observed the newspaper man, "is he who by field and constant practice has brought his power of sleep to such a stage that he does not awake even when a dynamite bomb is set off in his room." The chance acquaintance leaned back in his seat with rapt expression, as he contemplated a beautiful vision. "And what makes you take such an interest in the slumbers of the human race?" was asked. "I am a burglar," he replied. "But just because one of my fellow men did not reach the stage of somnolent perfection I had to abandon my trade for some years."

Important Russian Industry.

The production of wood pitch and tar is a highly important industry of the timber districts of Russia. A large quantity of such substances is not only used for home consumption in Russia, but is also exported to foreign markets. England alone takes over 100,000 barrels yearly of Russian pitch and tar. Informal times pitch is exported chiefly to England from Archangel, where it is one of the principal articles of trade, while turpentine has been shipped to Germany from the Baltic ports and overland. In recent years in western Russia, especially near the Vistula river, large quantities of pitch and turpentine have been distilled from the stumps left after the clearance of woods, this having been in great demand in Germany on account of its good quality and low price. Up to the present time the operating methods employed in this industry have been, for the most part, of a primitive character, and carried on in small establishments, where the owner is at the same time workman and salesman.

Letters Home

A Series of Letters From a
New Comer to Her Mother

Dear Mother—

My first letter to you from the new home. Both of us have been so busy that we have had hardly a moment of our own. Getting settled in a new town, especially where one has to start from the very ground up isn't exactly an easy job.

This morning we made our final arrangements to start on the new house at once so as to be as far along as possible when the cold weather hits. Our bill of material was figured by four yards but we have placed the order with the Goodrich Lumber Co. I was very careful in doing this because I realize this is to be our home for years to come and that every stick of material must be just right. That is what they make their fight for business on, quality and they do it with out making the price exorbitant. My figures are sufficiently low so that I can afford the extra furniture I wanted.

The yard, mother, for the past two years has been under the charge of C. W. Hill and the changes they have made and the quality of material are evidently the reason for their large increase in business. Just think of it over 300,000 feet of lumber in the yard not to speak of the oceans of other building materials. I have no idea what an amount goes through the yard in a year but it took an even 125 cars last year to haul it in. Handling materials in this quantity—having just what you want when you want it—gives the Goodrich Lumber Co., an opportunity to supply their customers promptly and to make prices that would hold business and induce new business even without the Goodrich quality.

Mr. Sibley tells me that he will have his men on the job Thursday and that they will rush the work right through. When I commenced to look for the man to build our home I found that Sibley & Son were the contractors doing the bulk of the business. That men are doing the most business in their line is not always an indication they are the best but in this case it is so. I know because I took pains to investigate. The firm is J. E. and N. E. Sibley and their record here commenced in 1894. Twenty years of doing the type of work that gives people who know the right to tell the newcomer, "they do nearly all the business" is just what I want in building. It means honest work and as a usual thing better price.

I went over one of their houses, that of N. E. Sibley, and while it is more expensive than ours will be it is a beauty. If my job will show the same effort, and I know it will, I shall be more than satisfied. It is located on Victoria street here and it is like the B. H. Overton place, another place built by them, both places are so pretty and so different that they just seem to hit your eye.

And just now while I am telling you about the new house let me impress upon your mind the fact that we do not propose to freeze to death. I placed all this in the hands of Mr. Will Williams of Williams Brothers. I gave him our plans, told him that I wanted heating and plumbing which would give the greatest efficiency at the most reasonable price. Then I LEFT IT ALL IN HIS HANDS. For the past 20 years the Williams Brothers have been in this business and I know this was the right thing to do. They are bound to no particular make of heater but install the plant that will give the best result in each case. The plant that they are going to use for me is the same that.

Maud had put in a couple of years ago. Her house always was hard to heat and yet through the severe winter last year they were as warm as toast. Mr. Williams tells me that this plant will go through winter after winter with no repairs, furnish plenty of heat to the radiators and come out as good as new in the spring with a sawing in coal. I know from Maud's experience that this is so. Another thing that impressed me was the fact that they have such a very large stock of everything needed and men enough to do a prompt job. Of course price is a secondary proposition in this class of work but I took pains to know that from Williams Brother I am getting a good price also.

So you are having trouble with your market? Uncertainty in your meats until after they are on the table is unsatisfactory at any time but it's a mighty bad time to have anything happen when Aunt Jane is there. I wish you were close enough to use my market. We do get the best meats. You know how particular I am about my eatables? Well I went into the Powles market and everything was just as clean as my own kitchen, the meats on display looked so good that I almost wished I were running a boarding house and the steak that I got was so good that I selected my market right then. Mr. Powles is like the balance of the merchants here—they do their big business in the summer but he realizes that it's the all year round customers who deserves the favors. Its for that reason I suppose that he has such a large share of the Antioch business.

In your letter saying that you do not envy us our trip in the old car you intimated that you do not care for the trips we have planned. We are going to fool you and give you a ride in a real car for we are going to have a new Overland. You know we have been looking at different cars for some time, in fact, have seen practically all of the standard makes but none of them seem to fit both our desires and our pocket book. Well see, we took the old car into the H. & R. garage and got talking with Mr. Rosenfeldt, result is that we will own an Overland. Billy had seen it before but I fell in love at first glance. It's the most beautiful thing you ever saw and with an engine that simply goes right out and does its work with out any fuss—does it well and does it thoroughly. The best of it is that it only cost us $750. Just wait until you have a chance to ride in it and you too will be an Overland convert. Its so roomy and rides so comfortably.

The kids are all crazy around this town over saving the covers from Rexall tablets to today I went into King's Pharmacy and bought one. This is the paper. The Drug store here, mother, is one of the largest stocked drug stores you ever saw in a town of this size. F. R. King has had it only a year but it surely is a nice store. The show cases contain every sort of toilet article or accessory one could want. You know how blame particular I am about toilet articles? I found what I wanted at King's. Besides several of the Rexall preparations several of the kinds of soap and the like we have been accustomed to. I always like to find a store which carries a real stock because I think that we get better prices and I know that we have a much better chance to select what we want. Wait you till you come and I will just turn loose at King's.

We have got one thing here that one doesn't often find in a town the size of Antioch—an excellent shoe store. While I was shopping the other day I saw a shoe in Cribb's windows that interested me so today I stepped in. Do you know that I found the Mayfair and Ladfair shoes. It was like meeting old friends. This is sixth consecutive years that I have worn Rice and Hutchins shoes and you know how satisfactory they have been. I told Mr. Cribb so and he says that he believes them to be as satisfactory a shoe for a woman as can possibly be secured. Their wearing quality appeals to me and the fact that they possess style isn't one that I am liable to overlook. I bought a new pair of house shoes and some dress shoes that I really need. Me for the Rice and Hutchins's every time. Mr. Cribb made a new customer quick by having them on his shelves.

Tonight we are going to the Antioch Theater, to see some new pictures they are running. I have just finished boosting about our stores but the theatre is worth boosting too. It lacks one thing that you think is essential in a picture house—beauty but it makes up for it in the class of pictures and the way they are put on the screen. In the first place they are located on the top floor of the opera house and one has to climb to reach them but when you once get there and in your seat you can just settle down and enjoy yourself. The curtain is up high enough so that one doesn't have to crane the neck until you have cramps and you can see perfectly in a comfortable position. They use mutual movies and you know what that means with 28 release weekly and four selected reels at each show.

By the way when are you coming. I'd rather like to have you while we are building and things.

Mable.

Peculiar Flint Rock.

J. C. Oliver of Woodstock, Vt., has a white flint rock somewhat smaller than a man's fist. Through one end of it is an irregular hole smaller than a lead pencil, caused by a vein of iron which had rusted out. The long root of a dock plant has grown through the hole, flitting it solidly and extending some distance in the ground beyond.

Training Children.

The trouble is that many parents do not appreciate the importance of beginning to train their children in emotional control while the children still are very small. They may scold them and punish them, but they do not train them. So that often without the parent's suspecting it, the habit of excessive emotionality grows until it becomes an ingrained personal trait.

United States Loses Trade.

Brazil exports great quantities of rubber, but buys its automobile tires from Europe, not because European tires are best, but because Europe has better trade connection in Brazil than has the United States.

Country of Horse Raisers.

The Argentine Republic contains more horses than any other country, the proportion being about 112 to every 100 of the population.

Growth of Finger Nails.

Finger nails grow more quickly in summer than in winter. Those on the middle finger grow the fastest, and the thumb the most slowly.

George Randolph Chester

Having completed a course of instruction in his "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" stories, showing anyone who follows it how to become wealthy George Randolph Chester now takes a new turn and shows his audience how to be good. In the new serial "The Ball of Fire," which we have arranged to publish in installment form Mr. Chester descants upon the modern tendency toward commercialism in everything, and especially that of making a business enterprise of a church.

It is a rapidly moving story with a well-defined romance centered largely around a beautiful western girl who visits her uncle in New York city. It is one of the best novels Chester has ever written and one you should not fail to read.

Bell System

When signalling the operator that you wish to call a number, give the telephone crank a quick turn.

This operation generates electrical motive power which operates the switch-board mechanism at "Central." Slow, continued turning may fail to do this, and the operator may get no signal. Rapid, continued turning has no value—is simply wasted energy.

The "quick, short turn" is the right way to signal the operator, both before and after using the telephone.

Immense fortunes in India are in jewels, but there is no authoritative method of computation of the extent of this form of wealth. The Imperial Gazetteer of India described 50 years ago a shawl of pearls, with an arabesque border of diamonds, rubies, sapphires and emeralds, valued at $5,000,000. There are tales of carpets of pearls and great diamonds which have become world-famous.

U. S. WARNS TURKEY FILM TRUST IS HIT

AMERICANS ROUSED BY KILLING OF ARMENIANS BY OTTOMAN TROOPS.

MENACE FRIENDLY RELATIONS

Ambassador Morgenthau at Constantinople Tells Sultan That Unless Atrocities Cease Amity With America Will Be Menaced.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Ambassador Morgenthau at Constantinople was instructed by cable on Monday to inform the Turkish minister of foreign affairs that public sentiment in the United States was so stirred by the reports of the massacres of Armenians that unless the massacres ceased friendly relations between the American people and the people of Turkey would be threatened.

Officials made it clear that this message, though its importance was by no means minimized, did not threaten a break in diplomatic relations. Turkey already has let it be known that she will not permit interference by any foreign power with her so-called "Armenian policy."

As American life or property has not been affected, the United States government, without submitting an official protest, merely informs Turkey of the effect continued Armenian atrocities would have upon the American people.

Secretary Lansing said that no representations had been made to Germany regarding the treatment of the Armenians by the Turks.

CHICAGO BARS CLOSE SUNDAY

Mayor Thompson Notifies City Council of Action—"Lid" Goes On Next Sabbath.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Sunday saloons in Chicago are doomed. Mayor Thompson by executive order will enforce the state Sunday closing law. He made this announcement in a message read to the city council on Monday. The message came as a complete surprise and caused a tremendous sensation. Aldermen and spectators who crowded the galleries were thunder-struck.

The mayor said the opinion of the corporation counsel was that existing city ordinances permitting, under certain restrictions, saloons to remain open on Sunday could not nullify the state law.

In view of this opinion Mayor Thompson said he believed it to be his duty to enforce the law, and accordingly he would order all saloons to close on Sunday. Presumably the order becomes effective next Sunday.

CHARGE FRAUD AT POLLS

Head of Dry Forces in Minneapolis Says Law Was Violated—Wets Claim 10,000 Majority.

Minneapolis, Oct. 6.—The county option election here on Monday was bitterly contested, both the wets and the dries making every effort to get out the largest vote possible. Frank E. Ald, of Cincinnati, manager of the wet organization, claimed his side had been victorious by from 8,000 to 10,000 majority.

Rev. George B. Safford, at the head of the dry forces, said: "There has been the most shameful violation of law by the wets, wagon loads of illegal voters having been taken to the polls. Not more than 5,000 of those fellows have been run in on us, we have won."

REMOVE MAYOR GOSSOM

House Council by Vote of 6 to 3 Votes to Oust Executive as Result of Impeachment Trial.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 6.—The city council by a vote of 6 to 3 on Monday voted to remove Mayor James Gossom as a result of the impeachment trial. The council also voted to appoint a committee to investigate the charges against the mayor.

U. S. COURT ORDERS MOVING PICTURE COMBINE TO DISSOLVE

VIOLATED ANTITRUST LAW

Decision Rendered at Philadelphia Says That Contracts Were a Conspiracy in Restraint of Trade and Therefore Illegal.

Philadelphia, Oct. 4.—The United States district court on Friday decided the antitrust dissolution suit against the Motion Picture Patents company in favor of the government.

The Motion Picture Patents company is a holding concern. It was charged by the government that it controlled most of the moving picture patents in the United States and also had a large interest in the American rights in foreign patents. The suit was heard over a year ago.

It was charged by the government that the Motion Picture Patents company and other defendants were engaged in interstate and foreign commerce in motion pictures, films, cameras, exhibiting machines and other articles and apparatus used in the motion picture art, in violation of the antitrust law.

The court in its decision says that all the contracts enumerated in the government's petition and the combination therein described were a conspiracy in restraint of trade and therefore illegal and that they constituted with the exception of the operations of the Melles Manufacturing company, a monopoly in violation of the antitrust law.

Defendants named in the original petition of complaint besides the Motion Picture Patents company are: General Film company, Thomas A. Edison, Inc., George Kleine of Chicago, Lubin Manufacturing company, Pathe Freres, Selig Polyscope company of Chicago, Vitagraph company, Frank L. Dyer, Henry M. Martin, J. J. Kennedy, William Pelzer, Samuel Loeb, J. A. Berst of Chicago, Sigmund Lubin, Gaston Melles, Albert E. Smith, George K. Spoor of Chicago, W. N. Selig of Chicago.

With reference to the Melles company, the court said:

"The Melles Manufacturing company has denied (as have all the defendants) that it was in any sense a party to the combination charged. We have gone over all the proofs without finding any which go to making good the charge against this particular defendant. It is, therefore, excluded from the findings made and the petition as against it is dismissed."

DENIES CRIPPLING U. S. TRADE

Great Britain Shows American Gains Are Enormous—Says Germans Inspired Charges.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Great Britain's answer to reports widely circulated in this country that she has been interfering with legitimate trade of the United States with neutral European nations for the benefit of her own exporters is given in a note headed to Ambassador Page in London by Sir Edward Grey, the foreign minister, and made public here by the state department.

Data and figures are quoted at length to prove that where British exports and re-exports have increased the growth of similar trade from the United States has been many times as large, while in many cases there have been vast increases of American exports, compared with decreases in those from the United Kingdom.

The note, which is in response to the British ambassador's report of a reference at the state department to the unfavorable impression created here by reports of increases in British trade with northern European countries since the war began, suggests also that statements concerning Great Britain's policy have been inspired by German agents.

August 13 is the date of the note.

ONE DEAD IN MINE BLAST

Seventy-Five Others Buried Alive as Result of Explosion at Hanna City, Ill.—All Are Rescued.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 2.—One man is dead, one is dying and 75 others were buried alive as the result of an explosion on Thursday night in the mine of the Logan Coal company at Hanna City, Ill. Fire followed shortly after the explosion and the mine was filled with smoke. The blast was extinguished in two hours and the men were rescued. None were injured.

MAIN DRIVE OF THE FRENCH

The immediate objective of the French drive in the region shown by this map is Somme-Py, which controls the railroad running behind the German lines.

FRENCH MAKE GAINS 549 PERISH IN FLOOD

CAPTURE HILL NO. 191 IN THE CHAMPAGNE DISTRICT.

Berlin Admits Position Has Been Lost—Allies Take 121 Big German Guns.

London, Oct. 2.—Continuing the terrible offensive, which has netted the allies almost daily gains for the past week and has resulted in the greatest loss of life and prisoners of any similar period in the entire war, the French troops in Champagne district on Thursday again broke through the German lines west of Tahiru Heights and at Hill No. 191, capturing the latter strategic position and rendering almost the entire German railroad from Cernay to Somme-Py useless.

Berlin officially admits the loss of Hill 191 and the penetration of the German lines southeast of Soissons. The greatest French gains continue in the Champagne region north of Meuse and further to the east between Hill 190, north of Massiges, and the road from Ville-sur-Tourbe to Cernay, followed by bayonet charges. More prisoners were taken in this action, according to Paris.

The French statement admits the success of German counterattacks at L'Ouvrage de la Defense, but declares a second attack was repulsed with heavy losses to the Germans.

The account of booty taken in the fighting since September 25 puts the total of field pieces and heavy guns captured from the Germans at 121. Eastward of Loos, which lies north of Lens, the British have pushed on a considerable distance on La Bassée road and now occupy the entire oval plateau of which Hill No. 70 is the culminating point.

WILSON SAVES MURDERER

Joseph Hillstrom Granted Reprieve Until October 16—Governor Spry Makes Announcement.

Salt Lake City, Oct. 2.—Governor Spry announced on Thursday that he had granted Joseph Hillstrom a reprieve until October 16 out of courtesy to President Wilson. Hillstrom was sentenced to be shot at dawn on Thursday. The text of the governor's message to the president has not been given out.

Washington, Oct. 2.—At the request of the Swedish minister, W. A. F. Elmgren, President Wilson on Thursday telegraphed to Governor Spry of Utah, asking a stay of execution for Joseph Hillstrom, a Swedish subject convicted of murder.

The Swedish minister said that he believed insolent behavior of Hillstrom during his trial had prejudiced court and jury against him.

MONTFORT HEADS G. A. R.

Cincinnati Man Elected Commander in Chief at Washington—Slaybaugh Senior Vice-Commander.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Capt. Elias R. Montfort of Ohio, who served for 16 years as postmaster of Cincinnati, was on Friday elected commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. Montfort was chosen over Frank O. Cole of Jersey City and William J. Patterson of Pittsburgh. Montfort received 539 votes, Patterson 231 and Cole 158. George H. Slaybaugh of Washington was selected as senior vice-commander.

Berlin, Oct. 5.—The German committee appointed to investigate the damage done by foreign governments to German property estimates the amount of damage at $250,000,000. It was announced here.

HURRICANE SWEEPS IN ON NEW ORLEANS FROM GULF.

Many Persons Were Injured and the Property Loss Will Run Into the Millions.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 1.—The total death list in the Gulf coast storm of this week is 549, according to the latest reports reaching here. Persons who have penetrated the storm swept district inland have reported that scores are dead, but these reports have not been verified.

More than 400 persons are missing in the storm-swept area of Louisiana and Mississippi.

The property loss will total nearly $7,000,000, according to the latest advices received here from the storm region.

Most of the loss of life reported was in Frontier and Manchac, La. The railroad agent at the former town telegraphed that eight white persons and seventeen negroes had been drowned and many injured when the wind drove the waters of Lake Pontchartrain into the streets.

At Manchac, ten miles north, a railroad section foreman and sixteen negro laborers were reported drowned. Unofficial estimates place the property loss at New Orleans at nearly $2,000,000. Twenty lives were lost there.

At least 150 persons were injured by the collapse of buildings, falling signs or flying glass. Hundreds of structures were unroofed or demolished in various parts of the city.

The maximum velocity of the wind was reported by the New Orleans weather bureau as between 120 and 130 miles an hour.

NEWS FROM FAR AND NEAR

BULGARIA NEAR WAR

RUSS TELL BULGARIA IT MUST BREAK WITH GERMANY WITHIN TWENTY-FOUR HOURS.

MINISTER TOLD TO LEAVE

Balkan Nation Is Ordered to Oust All German Officers—Czar Can't Sanction Preparations for Fratricidal Aggression Against Serbia.

London, Oct. 5.—According to the Times, the Russian minister at Sofia has delivered a formal ultimatum to Bulgaria demanding the expulsion of all German officers in Bulgaria within twenty-four hours.

The text of the ultimatum follows: "The events which are taking place in Bulgaria at this moment give evidence of a definite decision of King Ferdinand's government to place the fate of his country in the hands of Germany."

"The presence of German and Austrian officers at the war ministry and on the staff of the army, the concentration of troops on the Serbian border and the extensive financial support accepted from our enemies by the Sofia cabinet no longer leave any doubt as to the object of the military preparations of Bulgaria."

"The powers of the entente who have at heart the realization of the aspirations of the Bulgarian people have, on many occasions, warned Mr. Radoslavoff that any hostile act against Serbia would be considered as directed against themselves. The assurances given by the head of the Bulgarian cabinet in reply to these warnings are contradicted by the facts."

"The representative of Russia, which is bound to Bulgaria by the imperishable memory of her liberation from the Turkish yoke, cannot sanction by his presence preparations for fratricidal aggression against a Slav and allied people. The Russian minister therefore has received orders to leave Bulgaria with all the staffs of the legation and consulates if the Bulgarian government does not, within twenty-four hours, openly break with the enemies of the Slav cause and of Russia and does not at once proceed to send away officers belonging to the armies of states which are at war with the powers of the entente."

WHALES CAPTURE THE FLAG

Top Gained After One Game Puts Chicago Third—Score of First Was 5 to 4 and Second 3 to 0.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—More than 34,000 fans, 33,212 according to the official figures, saw Charley Weighman's Whales put Chicago back into the ranks of champions after an absence of five years. The trick was turned at Weighman's park when the Northsiders defeated the Pittsburgh Rebels, 3 to 0, in the ultimate game of the double-header that wound up the 1915 Federal league season.

Leading the race when the contest began, the Whales were dropped to third place behind St. Louis when the Rebels made a gallant uphill fight and won the first game, 5 to 4, after 11 innings of triple-riveted excitement. Joe "Tinker" men drove Elmer Kretzer from the clog in the sixth inning of the afterpiece and when Bill Bailey continued to blank the aliens the Northsiders were proclaimed pennant winner by the narrow margin of half a game.

JUST FORCED TO COME DOWN

Render Will See That Smith's Reason for Descent Was an Entirely Good One.

Here is a story that was told by Congressman James C. Cantrell of Kentucky the other afternoon in illustrating a remark on the force of necessity:

Recently Smith hired a horse for a cantor along the pike, but the animal, having neither a sweet nature nor a great desire to work strenuously, began to buck, and the rider was ungraciously thrown through the air and dropped by the wayside.

"Hello, Smith," smilingly remarked a friend the following day: "I saw you out horseback yesterday."

"You did?" responded Smith, beginning to wonder a bit.

"Yes," continued the other, his smile broadening. "What made you drop down so quickly?"

"Case of necessity," answered Smith. "Did you see anything up where I was to hold on to?"

GOOD AND SUFFICIENT REASON

Colored Man Knew Nothing About Incompatibility, but He Knew What He Had Suffered.

The old negro had been arrested for "having more than one wife," the last woman being the complainant. He happened to be well known locally and an orderly character.

"How many wives have you had?" demanded the judge.

"Six, yo' honor," was the reply.

"Why couldn't you get along with them?" the judge insisted.

"Well, sah—de fast two splied de white folks clothes when dey washed 'um; de thud wot'n no cook; de firs—I'll tell you, jedge—de firs, she—"

"Incompatibility?" the court suggested.

"No, yo' honor," said the old negro, slowly, "it weren't nothin' lik' dat. Yo' jes' couldn't get along wid her onless yo' wuz somewhars else."—Case and Comment.

Why That Lame Back

Morning, lameness, sharp pain when sleeping, or a dull, all-day ache; each is cause enough to suit kidney trouble. Get after the cause. Help the kidneys. We Americans do, overtend and neglect our sleep exercise, and so we are becoming victims of kidney sufferers. 72% of deaths from kidney disease the 1800. Is the story told by the 1910. If annoyed with a lame back, irregular kidney action, muddy bad habits and use Doan's Kidney

An Illinois Case

Thomas J. Deal, 504 Walnut St., Harrisburg, Ill., says: "I was in bed above with kidney trouble. My back pained me terribly and dizzy spells topped me over. My limbs and hands swelled and the kidney secretions were terribly painful in passing. I had to quit work, and a nervous wreck. I was unable to sleep and doctors failed to help me. I used Doan's Kidney Pills, and the kidney action was restored, and the back pain was gone."

Unwelcome Contribution to the Conscience Fund

WASHINGTON.—It took some bookkeeping on the part of the division of public monies of the treasury department to cover into the United States treasury two two-cent stamps received for the conscience fund the other morning by Secretary McAdoo. Had it been a single two-cent stamp, probably the conscience fund would not have been enriched by that much.

In fact, whenever the sender of a two-cent stamp is known the stamp is returned. For it costs more to charge a two-cent stamp into a cash asset, make out certification of deposit and bookkeeping entries than the transaction nets to the government.

The sender of the two-cent stamp was trying to compensate twofold for a childhood crime. The note accompanying the stamps told that the writer had used a canceled stamp, and now sent double the amount of the piffer to square the account. There was no signature. The postmark was much obscured, and could be made out only as from the post office of Huntersville, the state not distinguishable.

Secretary McAdoo was given an object lesson recently in the newer proverb, "It pays to advertise."

He received for Uncle Sam a $300 contribution to the conscience fund from a woman in Maine who wrote:

"I have just learned I can send you money for the conscience fund. I have wanted, for 20 years, to pay the duties for smuggling some clothes for a friend who ordered them and wrote me from America saying she could not afford to have them if she paid the duty."

The woman further explained that she did not declare the clothes for fear that it would displease her husband, who had always insisted that all dutiable goods be sent in by express. The duty was $67, and it was sent with compound interest for 20 years to make up any deficiency and to pay also for a cheap watch that had been brought in inadvertently.

Thought Bryan Was Governor of the District

JUSTICE SIDONS, when examining prospective citizens as to their fitness for naturalization, receives some peculiar replies to his questions. One applicant mistook the happy estate of the District of Columbia as traceable to the pacific views of the former secretary of state.

"How is the District of Columbia governed?" was asked of this applicant.

"By a governor," he answered.

"Well, who is the governor?" queried Justice Sidons, with eager eyes.

"Bryan," responded the applicant, unhesitatingly.

The court thought the would-be citizen should read up a little more on the "Politics of the District."

For six months. Another would-be citizen, of the Newman oyster case, but looked for the answer.

"He is a district commissioner," appointed?" asked the court.

"By you?" responded the applicant.

"Is a sale necessary before they may enter upon their duties?" was the reply.

"No, CHIEF," he confirmed by the United States Supreme court, "was the ready answer of the would-be citizen."

National Press Club Takes In Two Presidents

THE National Press club has added to its list of highly distinguished members, additional presidents of republics, President Wilson already being a member. Two names of Dr. Manuel Estrada Cabrera, president of Guatemala, and of Dr. Alberto Mombreno, president of Honduras, were proposed for membership in the famous organization, and after the lapse of the usual two weeks, during which names of proposed members must be posted in the club, they were added to the rolls, already distinguished by the names of many personages in the United States as well as in foreign countries.

President Cabrera and President Mombreno are well known to many Washingtonians. President Cabrera is particularly well known by the naval officers who belong to the club, as well as to a number of newspaper men and others who are members, and President Mombreno has recently left Washington after service here as minister from Honduras, into here he was frequently a guest at the club, and president Cabrera always made it a point to entertain Americans visiting his capital, Guatemala City, many Washingtonians having enjoyed his hospitality.

Both Doctor Cabrera and Doctor Mombreno entered the club not as presidents of republics, but as authors, under which category Woodrow Wilson became a member. Doctor Mombreno is one of the distinguished literary men of Central America. He is the author of several works on law subjects as well as of several on the Indian antiquities of Central America. Doctor Cabrera long been an author of books on economic and political subjects, and has been noted as an authority on Central American history.

American Seajackets Refuse to Wear Pajamas

THE pajama as a night apparel for the bluejackets has not been popular in our navy some time ago stocks of these articles were placed on board ship for sale to the men, but there has been practically no demand for them. The pajama never has been in vogue on board ship; it may have been regarded as more or less nautical, but with nothing to commend it as a contraption in which a real seafaring man would involve himself as a protection against the perils of the night.

At all events, the sentiment of the enlisted men has been plainly evident, whether or not it may be analyzed or satisfactorily explained even by those most directly interested and implicated. Therefore, a pajama has remained unsought, if not dishonored in the storerooms on board ship, with the result that this notice has been sent out by the paymaster-general of the navy:

"It is requested that, as soon as possible after receipt of this letter, the stock of pajamas on hand in clothing and small stores be forwarded to the provisions and clothing depot for disposition by sale."

This means that something like a stock of $100,000 worth of pajamas was to be turned in at the highest bidder.

"We couldn't wear them because it took so long to climb out," explained one bluejacket. "Our jackets have to be built for speed as well as for comfort. So we've just naturally gone back to the old-fashioned nightgown. It was good enough to Washington. It's good enough for us."

PROVIDING FOOD FOR THE WILD DUCKS

Farmers Can Assist in This Work, by Planting, in Streams, Ponds, Lakes and Swampy Sections, Such Foods as the Wild Ducks Are Fond Of.

By W. L. MCATEE.

MANY plants may be successfully used as food for wild ducks in localities where now they are not grown, and this will be a strong inducement for the ducks to congregate in sections where they are unknown at this time.

Frogbit.

Frogbit is an abundant inhabitant of some of the shallow cypress-marshy lakes in Louisiana. It produces spherical fruits filled with gelatinous matter in which are a multitude of seeds, eagerly sought by ducks. Nearly 18 per cent of the food of 203 mallards collected in that locality from October to March, inclusive, consisted of these seeds. From 8,000 to 10,000 were found in each of several stomachs and one contained 32,000. Twenty-five stomachs of ring-necked ducks collected in December contained 85 per cent of these eagerly sought seeds. Frogbit is extensively used in aquaria and water gardens, and may be obtained from dealers in plants for such purposes. The plants themselves should be set out in water a few inches deep over a muddy bottom or in soft mud near the water's edge. Frogbit has been found in parts of New York, New Jersey and Delaware, but the normal range probably is from North Carolina and Missouri southward.

Frogbit.

Eel-Grass.

Few who have written of the habits of sea-brant have failed to mention its fondness for eel-grass. The relaon between this species of bird and eel-grass seems to be as close as, if not closer than, that existing between the red freshwater pair, the canvas-back duck and wild celery. All normal stomach contents of the common eel-grass examined consisted exclusively of eel-grass.

Eel-grass consists of bunches of long tape-like leaves which rise from isolated, fibrous-rooted, creeping stems. The leaves grow in small bundles at the end of the root-stem or its branches, and may reach a length of 1 foot. The plant grows only in salt water.

CONDENSATIONS

The coal produced by Pennsylvania in 1913 exceeded by more than 20 per cent the entire output of the United States 15 years before, and is nearly one-fifth of the world's production.

In December, 1913, national savings Russia amounted only to $350,000; December, 1914, however, after the 10 of vodka had been stopped, the savings had reached nearly $15,000.

In North America it is found from Greenland to the Gulf of Mexico, and from Alaska to southern California. It is common along shores facing the open ocean, but also grows in bays, and even lagoons where the water is far less salt than the sea.

Musk Grass.

The small tubers of musk grass are eaten in large numbers; more than 1,000 were contained in the stomach of one goldeneye and more than 1,500 in that of a pintail duck. However, all parts of musk grasses are eaten. In September, stomachs of ducks found in North Carolina contained 52 per cent of musk grass; October, 90 per cent.

Probably no part of the United States entirely lacks representatives of these grasses. They require lime, however, and hence reach their best development in regions where that mineral is plentiful.

Musk grasses belong to the great group of plants which include forms known as frog spit, green slime and seaweeds. Most of the musk grasses live in fresh water. These plants are translucent and fragile, dull green in color, and are often incrustated with lime. This has given them one of their common names, limeweed. Other names are stonewort, fine moss

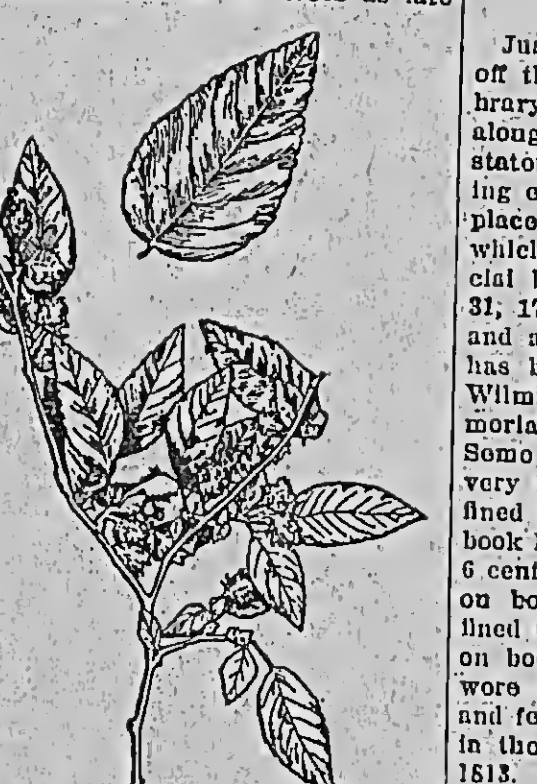

Musk Grass.

(Michigan), oyster grass and nigger wool (North Carolina), and skunk grass (Massachusetts). The latter name and the name musk grass, refer to a strong odor given off by a mass of the plants when freshly taken from the water.

Water Elm.

That trees should produce food for wild ducks is at first thought surprising, but many do, as oaks, thorns, hollies, ashes, hackberries and others; none is of more value for this purpose, however, than the water elm.

The trunk of the water elm extends from the lower Wabash valley in Indiana to the river bottoms of eastern Texas, and from western Tennessee and southeastern North Carolina to Florida. This plant thrives in swamps and on the margins of sluggish streams. The tree seldom exceeds 40 feet in height and 20 inches in diameter and is usually much smaller. The water elm flowers from February to April and the fruit usually ripens and falls in a month or six weeks, but it has been found on the trees as late as August. The fruits, which are very numerous, drop into the water immediately upon ripening.

Watercress.

Knowledge of the importance of watercress as a duck food is derived entirely from breeders of wild ducks,

Concrete arches resting on bedrock have been built in a New Hampshire cemetery to support gravestones in land too soft to support them itself.

So sensitive is electrical apparatus invented by a French scientist that it will detect the presence of one part of bicarbonate of potash in 200,000,000 parts of water.

The flying fish does not really fly, but raises itself from the water by means of its long fins. It can support itself in the air until they become dry, when it drops back into the sea.

who almost without exception consider it a valuable plant for a duck farm. Not only is it relished, but it is said to grow so fast in some places that the ducks cannot eat it out. Watercress occurs practically throughout the entire United States.

Watercress is usually propagated by seed, which may be obtained from most seedsmen. The plant is easily transplanted by cuttings. It grows in springs, brooks, small streams and shallow ponds. Waters in which it is found are usually cool and have some current. It may be sown in similar situations at any time during spring or summer.

Thalia.

The writer's only experience with thalia as a wild-duck food was in Florida. Here a slough filled with a tall growth of these elegant plants was a favorite resort of ducks, especially mallards. The evidence is sufficient to show that thalia has great possibilities as a wild-duck food. The seeds are large and nutritious and are borne in great abundance. The leaf is much like that of canna, and may measure five inches wide and fifteen inches long. The plant is native from Florida to southern Arkansas and Texas, and doubtless it will thrive as far north as South Carolina and Missouri.

Old-Time Library.

Just as Arlington was about to carry off the palm for having the oldest library in the state, organized in 1803, along comes Wilmington with the statement that during a recent cleaning of an attic in a law office in that place a book of records was found which showed that the Wilmington social library was organized December 31, 1795, with a constitution, by-laws and a list of subscribers. This book has been presented to the present Wilmington Institution, the Petto Memorial library, to be kept as a relic. Some of the entries in the book are very interesting. Israel Lawton was fined 17 cents for dropping tallow on book No. 93, Timothy Castle was fined 6 cents for getting one drop of tallow on book No. 16, Levi Packard was fined 60 cents for tearing the binding on book No. 106, and several others were fined for turning down leaves and for finger marks. The latest date in the list of revenues is October 4, 1813.

Changing Ideals.

"When I was a boy," said the thoughtful man, "I wanted to be the clown in a circus."

"You have gotten bravely over that."

"Yes. Circus clowns are not very liberally compensated. I'd rather be a good moving-picture comedian."

Notwithstanding higher prices, the United Kingdom imported larger quantities of sugar, tea, coffee and cocoa last year than in 1913.

Maintaining the rate of increase shown during the last forty years, Russia's present population at the end of the present century will number 600,000,000.

The opportunities for gaining knowledge in the province of Ontario are great. There are, including kindergartens, institutes and continuation classes, 5,942 public schools—all free.

DOG WAITING AT MASTER'S GRAVE

Kansas Collie Is Still Hoping for the Return of His Owner.

KEEPS ALL-NIGHT VIGIL

Animal Each Day Makes Rounds They So Often Traveled Together, Then Tries to New Grave in Cemetery.

Buckner, Mo.—Pete is only a dog. Just a collie dog with the gentle, expressive eyes of his kind and a good deal of gray about his muzzle. Folks in Buckner, Mo., say that they can notice the gray the last three weeks or so, but they may be mistaken in that.

Pete, being only a dog, is not expected to know the depths of emotion that persons feel. He is not supposed to understand about death and sorrow and utter loneliness and that sort of thing. He was a smart dog, people said, and had been a faithful companion to his master, William Hudepeth, who lived on a farm near Duckner.

But when Mr. Hudepeth died three weeks ago, everyone forgot about Pete. There were so many things to be looked after that the grief-stricken family left him to his own devices.

Beyond a Dog's Understanding.

It had been a strange day for Pete. Early in the morning the people who came to the house had routed him out of his place in front of the door where he had lain during the two weeks his master was in bed.

They wouldn't let him in where his master was, not even in the house, although he tried to get in several times. And then finally they brought his master out in a big box and everybody went down the road with him. Pete went along, of course.

They went on across the railroad tracks and up the rock road.

He stopped with the rest of them at the place where the white stones stood about in the grass and watched them all go over to a big hole in the ground. But his master wasn't amongst them. Perhaps he wasn't in the big box after all. He'd probably stopped in town as he always did, and Pete, foolish dog, hadn't noticed it. It was much more likely that his master was in that box they were putting down in the hole.

So Pete started back. The loungers on the bank steps called to him as he stopped there, but he paid no attention to them. They watched him trot on down the street and stop for a moment at each store his master had used to visit. Then he disappeared out the road to the farm.

Waiting in Cemetery.

The sexton, working late that night, heard a whine among the graves. When he came to the newest one he found Pete. The dog lay on the grass at the side of the headstone and would not come away when he sexton left. The next morning he was still there. Since then Pete has never missed a day at the graveyard. When he turns a from the road he goes straight to the Hudepeth lot and stays there for hours at a time. The sexton has noticed his restlessness. He haunts around among the stones only to return to his master's grave. Finally he goes back to town and makes once more the round of the stores.

Sometimes he goes out to the farm then. Sometimes he goes back to the graveyard and the sexton finds him in the morning whining at the mound of earth. Always he has a restless, troubled air as he searches for someone who cannot be found.

And there he sits at his master's grave.

Mother of Five Babies in 18 Months.

Brooklyn.—Mrs. Anna Bellama of Brooklyn has presented her husband with five babies in a year and a half. Twins, boy and girl, were born 15 months ago, and triplets, two boys and a girl, a few days ago. All are thriving and so is the mother. This is her second essay at twins, a pair having been born eight years ago, making seven children in three births. All are living.

Wear Furs of Necessity.

Throughout the cold latitudes of China during the winter the Chinese of all classes wear fur, wool or hair-lined garments. Even the coolies have their sheep or goat skins, and people of the middle and official classes have many sets of garments lined with the richest furs. Their houses are rarely heated to a comfortable temperature, and in consequence they wear their furs both indoors and out.

Nails Used in Surgery.

It is said that common iron nails are now successfully used by surgeons in the repair of broken bones. The nails, which are used to hold the pieces in place while the healing process goes on, are soon covered with a sort of rust-resisting membrane and their presence occasions no trouble or ill effects. Sioux City (Ia.) surgeons report cases in which nails and even iron stovepipe wire have been used for this purpose.

HIDDEN HOUSE

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

"Remember, Jack, the man has been in prison for twenty years—once, he was a great politician, a rich man, respected by all—but he was found out in a big steal. He's done time and now he is out. What is he going to do with the rest of his life? Bring me the story—and you'll get yours, see?" The chief smiled and Jack hustled away to catch the first train for a remote Long Island village, where it was said Roberts was in hiding.

At Sandways Jack guardedly questioned the host of the solitary hotel. He reasoned that Lawson Roberts would seek sanctuary under an assumed name.

"Many strangers in town?" repeated the hotel man, thoughtfully nibbling a toothpick. "Can't say as there are—all the hoarders have gone. I reckon you're an agent of some kind—maybe selling books?"

Jack smiled evasively. "I'll bet there's one old party you couldn't sell a book to—not if you was to take off 90 per cent of the price," went on the man.

"Who is he?"

"Name's Robinson—taken the old Hidden House—used to be Judge Hilden's place. Celia Hilden married Lawson Roberts, the politician; he's in prison now for crooked dealing. His wife died ten years ago and the place belongs to the daughter. It's never been rented until recently, when Mrs. Hester Bird rented it. No one ever heard of her before; and now her brother, old man Robinson, and his daughter have arrived. And they're all as close-mouthed and upish as can be; as if Sandways folks weren't good enough for them. And stung—whew!"

"Well, you're not very encouraging," responded Jack with a bored air as he moved away. But when he was out of sight his pace quickened. The first urchin he met directed him to Hidden house on the outskirts of the village.

He approached the side entrance to the gloomy old house, passing a small, rustic summerhouse smothered in woodbine.

"Halt!" said a determined voice. Jack halted to confront a wicked looking shotgun leveled by a sweet-faced, wide-eyed girl boyishly attired in a short khaki skirt and blouse, with high-laced tan boots on her pretty feet.

His hat came off and his look of inquiry was mingled with sincere admiration.

"Perhaps you didn't observe the 'No Trespassing' signs," she remarked coolly.

"I didn't," he honestly confessed. "They are plainly to be seen," she said significantly. "You can read them as you pass out."

"Thank you—but I want to see some one."

"Who are you looking for?" she asked sharply.

"Mr. Roberts," he hazarded.

Her face paled and a desperate look came into the sweet eyes that should never have been troubled by sorrow.

"You mean Mr. Robinson?" she asked.

"I mean Lawson Roberts," he said, feeling like a brute.

The gun dropped suddenly as if her strength had failed her.

"I might have known it! You want to interview him, I suppose? He has paid the price of his sin—let him alone!" she cried passionately.

"My—my paper—" he stammered, abashed at her emotion.

"Your paper!" she mimicked. "What is it to your paper what my father does now that justice has been satisfied? No one would listen to him when he protested his innocence in those old days." How scornfully she looked at him!

"Hardly that," he said brusquely. He looked sharply down the path. The bent form of a man was hobbling painfully down the walk.

"He is like a child," she said tremulously. "He has been shut away from the world so long, and now everything is strange to him. I will not have him hounded by curiosity seekers! I will kill the first man who tries to interview him!" She ended in a fierce outburst that was strangely unlike her gentle personality.

"I will go, Miss Roberts," he said slowly. "Some day I'm coming back again, not as a reporter to interview your father, but as a friend to help prove his innocence!"

"Ah, thank you—but stay now and hear his story of the guilty man," she cried eagerly.

He shook his head. "I must throw up my present job before I can tackle another one," he smiled and went away.

Afterward, when a great criminal lawyer took up the Roberts case and proved the innocence of the old man, all credit was given to Jack Shirley for his strenuous efforts in the case, and when Jack married Celia Roberts people said he had his great reward.

The editor of the Chronicle muttered malodictions on womankind in general and pretty girls in particular.

"I wondered what quivered that Roberts assignment," he frowned. "It was the girl in the case!"

INSURING LIVES OF OTHERS

Practice That Is Largely Prevalent, Though It Is Illegal—How It Is Done in the Trenches.

A recent case before the courts threw considerable light upon the penchant some people have for speculating in other people's lives. One woman held life insurances on her parents, her children, her mother-in-law, her brothers and several friends. Of course that sort of thing is illegal, but it seems to be a flourishing business nevertheless.

But hope delayed maketh the heart sick and after the insurers have kept the premiums paid up to pretty well the amount they would gain from the insurance company, they see their profit melting away and call the law to free them from their investment, claiming their premiums back on all sorts of ingenious defenses.

Rather a rotten business, but we are assured that it is much more prevalent than we have an idea of. There must be a tremendous temptation to assist fate at times, and in any case, when relatives form the chief investment on these lines, it must be rather exasperating to have them pitifully inform us that they are "quite well, thank you."

One recalls that scandalous "comic" song that had such a vogue a while back wherein an irritated hubby sang that he was stony broke with a wand of dough staring him in the face!

Some of the stories of the "sweepstakes" in the trenches are equally disturbing. The name of each man in the regiment going into action is put into a hat and every man puts up a franc. The money is divided between all those who drew the name of a man who is still alive or unwounded at the end of the day! A soldier can apply a chap holding his name by deliberately courting the attentions of a bullet. On the other hand, it tends to make them tenderly considerate of each other's lives and urgent admonitions to "take care!" are not necessarily disinterested.

SCORED HEAVILY ON PRINCE

Beau Brummell's Remark Left Him Master of Situation, but Victory Was a Costly One.

The greatest dandy and fop of modern times was George Brummell, known as Beau Brummell. He lived a life of delicate and leisure, and since he was poor his living depended upon the favor of the court. The court at that time was represented in the set where the beau's influence was felt by the prince of Wales, who was, if truth must be told, not a slender man. It happened that the prince and the beau quarreled.

To be a dandy is not generally considered the first mark of being a brave man, but Beau Brummell gave instant proof that he was not only a great dandy but a great man as well. The details of the story are somewhat vague, but the main facts are certain. Brummell knew that his quarrel with the prince would mean an end of his prestige, but he refused to yield, and on the day following the quarrel went walking with a friend, said to have been Sheridan.

The news of the rupture between the prince and the dictator of fashions had spread, and there were not a few who gathered in the hopes of a passage at arms between them.

It happened that Sheridan and Brummell met the prince and his party. With princely ostentation the royal personage called Sheridan aside and spoke to him, pointedly ignoring Brummell, who stood by. Brummell did not flinch in the crisis, he was the only person who seemed to be indifferent. Then Sheridan returned.

With a gesture of indifference Brummell lifted his glasses to his eyes and, indicating with a slight wave of his hand the person to whom he referred, he asked in a clear but languid voice the famous question:

"Sherry, who's your fat friend?"

Brummell spent the greater part of the remainder of his life in Calais, an outcast, a broken man. But with the memory of his great rebuke, it can hardly be said that in the crisis he was found wanting.

RENZIED dance and the efforts of some modern churches to serve God and Mammon, for the theme of this unusually interesting story the author of "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," and his wife, Gail Sargent, charming, young and handsome, comes out of the West and into the lives of rich and influential New Yorkers. A Napoleon of finance and the young rector of the best church in Gotham are among the suitors for hand. How she changes their aims, hopes, ambitions, and their lives makes a splendid story.
